ORANDUM FOR: DEPUTY DIRECTOR (INTELLIGENCE)

SUBJECT : Extension of the [redacted] Concept 25X1 25X1
 25X1

1. Before leaving [redacted] I discussed with [redacted] the idea of establishing additional [redacted] on the periphery of the Soviet orbit. We agree that small analytical units can make a great contribution to the US intelligence effort by providing analytical support for operations, by supplying [redacted] and other Washington offices with current intelligence, and by performing a number of other less clearly defined tasks. We believe that analytical personnel, at any given level, will have a clearer understanding of developments in a country if they are physically located as close to the target area as possible. 25X1

2. In order to function properly, the units must be kept small and must be staffed by fully competent personnel. Personnel should be supplied by [redacted] should be assigned to [redacted] for their overseas tours, and should audit the [redacted] training course before departure. It is believed desirable, if possible, for [redacted] to provide the unit chief and [redacted] the deputy. 25X1

3. Although firm T/O's cannot be established without an on-the-spot survey to determine the availability of information, requirements for liaison and operational support, etc., the following tentative tables are suggested based on experience in [redacted] 25X1

MEMORANDUM FOR: DEPUTY DIRECTOR (INTELLIGENCE)

25X1

SUBJECT

1. General:

Strategic Division can operate efficiently only if it remains a small organization and is staffed with experienced and relatively senior personnel.

2. Organization:

a. Present Status

Position	Incumbent Grade	Recommended Grade

25X1

b. Recommended Changes

25X1

(1) It is believed that the assignment of additional economic personnel from [redacted] would permit more adequate coverage in that field. Under these circumstances, the Economic Section would extend its area of coverage to include Poland and Czechoslovakia, in cooperation with the regional organizations, and should consist of a General Economist, a Statistician, and an Industrial Specialist.

(2) If the currently projected increased effort in the Polish and Czech fields produces an appreciable amount of intelligence, it is believed that an additional analyst will be necessary for the Polish/Czech Branch.

25X1

3. Mission:

a. To provide supplementary analytical support for [redacted] operations in [redacted]

25X1

b. To represent the SRG at [redacted] meetings; and on other committees where substantive or analytical representation is required;

* Is also responsible for analysis of the [redacted] rail situation and the post-militarization

c. To provide the SRG and certain other U. S. officials with evaluated intelligence as required; and

25X1

d. To act as field representative of [redacted] and [redacted] provide these and other interested Washington offices with appropriate current intelligence.

4. Operating Principles:

a. Current Intelligence

Items of interest are briefed and used as a basis for:

- (1) daily oral briefings of the SRG,
- (2) a weekly situation report cabled to Washington and pouches to the operating bases,
- (3) a weekly intelligence bulletin which is prepared for the [redacted] and his senior staff members; and
- (4) the [redacted] contribution to the monthly [redacted] report.

25X1

b. Long-range Intelligence

Long-range studies are prepared through normal analytical processes. The great majority are published as part of a basic handbook series which is designed to provide analytical organizations with detailed background data, and collection organizations with material necessary for planning of operations.

25X1 c. Analytical Support

[redacted] analytical support functions are most frequently initiated as a result of spot requests from operational desks or operations bases. These requests are fulfilled by conversations between the analyst concerned and operational personnel, by informal memorandum, or by a long-range study in the handbook series.
